Queensland
Government

There are new laws in Queensland about non-consensual sharing of intimate images.

Did you know?

It's now a criminal offence to share an intimate image without consent.

Threatening to share an intimate image is also a crime, even if the image doesn't exist.

Consent can only be given by people 16 years and over—no one 15 years or under can legally consent.

Anyone charged under these laws is facing up to three years in prison.
